BURMILANA – when you need texture!

News about BURMILANA embroidery thread from MADEIRA BURMILANA No. 12 – MADEIRA's popular wool blend thread combining real wool and acrylic remains as easy to handle and use and is now available with a new range of colours.

Added to the BURMILANA colour card is the new BURMILANA CO range, which will also be of great interest to embroiderers and embellishers.

BURMILANA CO is the same No. 12 thickness, in a cotton-acrylic mixture with 72 completely new colours, offering a beautiful complement to the BURMILANA wool blend range, at an even lower price.

The thickness of both blends makes it possible to create highly expressive embroidery, with fewer stitches compared to standard thread counts and particularly attractive relief textures. Each BURMILANA style is ideally suited for chenille and cornely embroidery.

Both thread ranges have a matte appearance and the distinctive texture is extremely tactile.

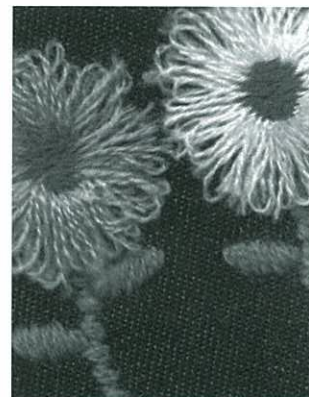

Mixing BURMILANA with other embroidery and special effect threads, on all styles of embroidery and decorative stitching, achieves individual and highly attractive designs, taking an embroidery project to the next level.

The BURMILANA collection includes attractive solid colours plus interesting colour mixes, extending creative opportunities.

The unique variety of the MADEIRA range with globally consistent colour references for all embroidery and special effect threads is always an asset for all fine embroidery applications.

More exciting innovations to MADEIRA's range of embroidery and special effect threads are in store for 2014 – expect further interesting news from Freiburg.

Please feel free to request colour cards and samples from the new BURMILANA No. 12 and BURMILANA CO colour ranges.
